NOTES

There should be little or no attempt at verisimilitude. There should be no crying.

The Amazing Girls: This script is currently written for seven. There can be any number of Amazing Girls ... I think seven is ideal. But seven is a lot. You could have one or three or five if that makes more sense ...

NOTE ON VIDEO GAMES

No footage of actual video games should be shown onstage. The titles in the stage directions are references only.

Grace is asleep on the couch in the den. She is in her late 20s. The TV is on. The TV only plays commercials. The sound of the commercials is a presence. Tyler plays Call of Duty: Modern Warfare on his Xbox 360 and smokes pot in his part of the house. He is surrounded by piles of pizza boxes and soda cans. He is in his late 20s, but he could be 16. Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen are getting dressed to go out. They have piles of clothing. Mountains of it. They get dressed and undressed with abandon.

2M, 10W (doubling)

Grace is 27, married to her high school sweetheart, makes good money, and should be way happier than she is. But her husband lost his job and now all he does is play Xbox and smoke pot and Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen might be her best friends but maybe they only like her because she's their new target demographic. Or maybe ... they're actually going to save her. A funny play about sad people.

"The script levels some delightfully devastating shots at pop culture and its reductive treatment of women. But playwright Mallery Avidon is after something meatier than just SNL-style ridicule. She's chronicling her generation's struggle for self-definition ... Avidon's style is fresh, contemporary, and ... touchingly sentient."

—Show Business Weekly

"In Mallery Avidon's angst-ridden dream-comedy MARY-KATE OLSEN IS IN LOVE, a woman's lot is a sorry thing. She can't find happiness as long as she looks outward for validation, but look inside, and she may simply be a hash of pop-culture references peppered with a sense of yearning ... It's a problem honestly come by: 'How do we know what to want?'"

—Time Out (New York)

"MARY-KATE OLSEN IS IN LOVE raises the terrifying possibility that the onslaught of marketing campaigns and a blind faith in the inevitability of upward mobility have created unrealistic expectations for a generation of Americans, hopes that are bound to crash and burn in a conflagration of disappointment."
